Smokeless Tobacco

Smokeless tobacco is a tobacco product that's chewed or sucked on. It's also called spit tobacco because it requires frequent spitting as saliva builds up in the mouth.

There are two types of smokeless tobacco: chewing tobacco and snuff. Chewing tobacco (also called chew or plug) is leaf tobacco. It's shredded, twisted or packaged in a brick. Snuff (also called dip) is powdered tobacco. It comes in small tea bag-like pouches. Both types are placed between the cheek or lip and the gums.

There are many harmful chemicals in smokeless tobacco. Side effects from using it can range from mild to severe. Mild side effects include stained teeth, bad breath, receding gums (gums that pull away from the teeth), and tooth decay. More serious side effects include mouth, throat, and lung cancer. Smokeless tobacco is not a safe alternative to smoking!

People who use smokeless tobacco regularly become addicted to the drug nicotine which is found naturally in tobacco. There's more nicotine in smokeless tobacco than in the type of tobacco that's smoked. To successfully quit, you must overcome your physical and psychological (emotional) need for nicotine.
