MIS: Reporter Writer & Developer

#1 Tell us a bit about your job.

I work in the MIS department at SWMC. I am a reporter writer and developer. I create reports for people if they need information on anything. I can provide documentation if they need to see certain statistics for a certain time. In basic terms, I create reports to get data that people need for a variety of things. I also do a little bit of programming and software development. I build applications for various things like the admission check-in system. It helps admissions keep track of the patients as they arrive and what order they arrive in. I also built a system for materials so they can do their charging.

#2 How long have you worked at SWMC?

I've been with SWMC for 22 years. I started in 1999. This was my first job straight out of college. It's been a good stable job. I started in MIS, and have remained in the same department.

#3 What is the most rewarding part of your job?

There are a lot of things that we can do to make people's jobs easier. We can take tasks that are time-consuming and make them easier with reporting, automated scripting, or by developing an application. I've done a lot of things that are tedious and time-consuming, so it's nice that I can help patients and coworkers.

#4 What is one accomplishment, personal or professional, that you are most proud of & why?

We've done two big updates, and they both went reasonably well. The first big one was in 2004 where we went to MedTech for the first time, and the expense was huge too. The second expense was in December of 2020.
